COUNCIL OF ASHVILLE ACCEPTS NEW GAS RATE

CUPID ACTIVE IN FEBRUARY

Old Dan Cupid, with his bow and arrow, seemed to be on the job during February according to the number of marriage licenses issued in probate court. There were 20 licenses in February compared to five in January. There were a few Valentine marriages, and as February is ordinarily termed a 'love month' it is to be expected that this number of licenses be issued.

Last year in February 21 permits were granted.

ESTATE WORTH $40000 FILED

Property of Late John Brinker, Ashville, Makes Numerous Bequests

A number of beneficiaries are named in the will and testament of the late John Brinker, Ashville, filed in probate court. The estate is estimated to be worth $40,160. The following bequests were made: a grave marker to be erected at the cost of $75; trustees of Reber Hill cemetery, $200; all real estate to two nephews, Wilber E. and W. S. Brinker; to sister, Emma Mast, $1,000; he directs his executors to convert property into money to be divided equally among four nephews, Wilber Brinker, W. S. Brinker, John Mast, George Mast, and the children of the deceased niece, Phoebe McCoy, to have one-fifth of the same.

The will was written at Ashville Dec. 4, 1930 in the presence of G. W. Morrison and J. H. Sark.

J. H. Sark, Singo Rife and Ludwig Oesterle, were appraisers and Wilber E. and W. S. Brinker were named executors.

TRIMMER BOUND OVER

Irvin Trimmer, this city, arrested with Ernest Dagon by Officer William McCrady, following their confession of entering the Helvering and Scharenberg station at Main and Mingo-sts and stealing gasoline, pleaded guilty and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 when arraigned before Mayor B. T. Hedges Monday afternoon.

Dagon's case will be transferred to juvenile court, because he is a minor.

WILSON WILL FILED

Thomas Wilson, Maplewood-ave, this city, was named sole beneficiary.

STEAL TIRES AT ASHVILLE

Service Station, Ford Garage Entered and 28 Tires Reported Stolen.

Ashville has been the scene of several robberies during the past few days which have just come to the attention of the office of Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff. Two robberies in which automobile tires were stolen have been reported, one at the H. M. Crites service station and the other at the Ashville Motor Sales garage, Ford dealers in that village.

Nineteen tires were reported stolen from the filling station while nine are gone from the Ford garage according to the report. The Crites station was completely stripped of tires, every one in the place being taken. It is thought the robberies occurred Saturday night and residents of the village believe the same person can be charged with both thefts.

MOORE'S TALK WELL RECEIVED

Clyde D. Moore, popular columnist of the Ohio State Journal, addressed members of the Kiwanis club and a number of guests including six Chillicothe Kiwanians Monday evening at the Boggs Hotel. With his original wise cracks, none of which had ever been heard before, Moore provided a very entertaining evening. He was the guest of Bishop Given.

Homier Gleadell, druggist, was present at the meeting as a new member. Judge Frank M. Clevenger of Clinton-co, trial judge in the Van Horn murder trial was a guest of the club.

Chicago's Choice for Mayor

Now that the primary fight is over Mayor William Hale Thompson (right) of Chicago is aiming his big guns at his Democratic opponent, Anton J. Cermak (left). "Big Bill" defeated Judge John H. Lyle for the Republican nomination by 68,000 votes. Cermak was named Democratic nominee by over 235,000. A further threat to Thompson is the entry of Dr. Herman Bundesen, Cook County Coroner, as an independent candidate.

DRY FIGHT IN HOUSE

House Leaders Predict Defeat of Nippert Plan For Referendum in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 3.—With dry house members confidently predicting its defeat, the Nippert resolution proposing repeal of the prohibition amendment to the state constitution was expected to be put through the legislative grist mill late today.

The measure, occupying a place on the house calendar, will probably reach a vote on the question of adoption sometime this afternoon.

Under the rule of the legislature, a three-fifths vote of the house membership, or at least 77 of the 128 members of the lower legislative branch, must support the resolution to insure its adoption.

The outlook for the bill was gloomy as it was put upon its hazardous course. Even Rep. Louis Nippert (R) of Cincinnati, its author, was among those voicing apprehension over the measure's fate.

Defeat of the Nippert resolution will without a doubt sound the death-knell for practically all proposed anti-dry legislation pending in the state legislature.

Repeal of Article 15, section 9, of the Ohio constitution (the dry amendment) is sought by the Nippert resolution. It provides for submission of the proposal to Ohio voters at the regular statewide election next November.

YOUNGSTOWN HIT BY BLAST

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Mar. 3.—A terrific explosion followed by fire ripped the Lincoln theater, a neighborhood movie house here, early today and resulted in injuries to at least a score of persons and fire damages estimated at approximately $30,000.

One girl, Rose Vitullo, 24, was reported to have lost her voice from the shock of the blast. Other persons who were at the scene when the explosion let loose received only minor hurts.

The force of the blast hurled the ticket booth of the theater across the street. Witnesses said persons living in the immediate vicinity of the theater were thrown from their beds.

Firemen blamed the explosions upon an arson gang which is believed to be responsible for numerous blazes in the city recently.

Mrs. Whiteman was given custody of their 7-year-old son, Paul, Jr. The dancer also will receive two life insurance policies aggregating $75,000 and an annuity policy to bring her a return of $12,000 a year.

CLIMAX IN DAUGHERTY TRIAL NEAR

State, Defense Prepare Arguments in Washington C. H. Banker's Case

DEFENSE AT REST

Defendant Admits Never Paying Own Debts

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., Mar. 3.—Testimony that $479,678 was deposited to the credit of Mal S. Daugherty's personal account was presented by the state in rebuttal testimony today of the banker's trial on charges of fraud in connection with the collapse of the Ohio State Bank.

Cecil L. Hall, expert accountant, gave this amount, as the total Daugherty deposited during the time the now-defunct banking institution was opened from April 1, 1928 to May 12, 1930.

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., Mar. 3.—The climax in the trial of Mal S. Daugherty on charges of fraud in connection with the operations of the defunct Ohio State Bank of which he was former president, was rapidly approaching today as both state and defense counsel prepared to present their arguments for and against conviction.

Three hours probably will be consumed for the closing statements of the opposing attorneys. Another hour will be taken up by the court's charge to the jury. And after that, the fate of Daugherty, brother of Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the administration of President Harding, will be placed in the hands of 12 tried and true men.

MAY END WEDNESDAY

Unless arguments take longer than expected, the jurors who for four weeks have been listening to the technical details of the bank's collapse, will receive the former banker's case sometime Wednesday.

Daugherty's defense rested Monday afternoon following completion of cross-examination of Daugherty by Special Counsel Louis J. Schneider. The defense rested on condition granted by Judge Charles S. Bell, that it could, upon motion, ask Daugherty other questions if deemed necessary after a night of deliberation.

As the state's cross-examination of Daugherty neared its close Monday, Schneider drew from the former bank president an admission that he had never paid a cent on his own indebtedness to the Ohio State Bank from the time it was formed by a merger of two other institutions to the day of its failure two years later.

Previous testimony had brought out that loans made to the accused banker's wife, under the name of L. H. Daugherty, also had never been paid. Notes to Mrs. Daugherty, according to evidence, totaled $12,100.

STATE MANAGER OF FAIR NAMED

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 3.—Appointment of Charles Beer of Ashland, O., as assistant director of agriculture and state fair manager was announced here today by I. S. Guthrie, state director of agriculture.

Beer, who for several years served as director of the Ashland fair was at one time connected with former secretary of agriculture, Edward Meredith in the publication of Farm Journal at Des Moines, Iowa.

RATE IS SAME AS TAXED NOW FIGURES SHOW

Village Council O. K. on Schedule after Refusing Several Offers

OFFER SAME HERE

Logan is Faced with Rate Fight too, Story Says

Ashville's village council Monday evening put its official O. K. on a proposed gas rate to take effect in that village as soon as the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.'s present rate schedule expires. The Ashville council had been very reluctant about accepting a rate, refusing several propositions of the Ohio Fuel Gas but Monday evening, caught in a good spirit, they agreed to accept the proposed rates of the company for the next five years in divisions of two and three years, largely because of the 'good service rendered up by George Forster, the local manager, according to members of council.

RATE IS SAME

The rate which will be in effect for the next two years in Ashville is exactly the same as that operated under at the present time. That schedule is 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet; 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for all over 500 cubic feet with a minimum bill of $1. These rates are according to gas used through each meter each month.

For the next three years, 1933, 1934, and 1935, the following rates will be used:

20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet;

7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 1,500 cubic feet;

6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet;

5-1/2 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 195,000 cubic feet;

5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 200,000 cubic feet with a minimum rate of $1.

Mr. Forster, manager of the fuel company in this district stated Tuesday that the same proposition will be made to the council of this city although at a later date. He announced that a proposal would not be made at the council meeting here Wednesday evening.

LOGAN, O. (Special to The Herald)

—An executive member of city council will be held this evening at which time the lawmakers will discuss the gas rate question. Last week when council met, the Wise of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. suggested that a higher rate would be asked on the ground that demand and decreased supply would make this action necessary.

It was pointed out that the increase probably would be asked at a rate of 72 cents per thousand whereas the present rate is 50 with a service charge of 50 cents per month. The representative pointed out the service charge would be abolished if the new rate is granted.

There is much opposition to the proposal.

DO YOU KNOW?

Frank L. Howard?

Frank's live I think a life time here.

He's known to most of you. In age I'd say he's hovering right close to forty-two. He stands right close to six feet tall.

His eyes and hair are black. A pleasant genial fellow. As you'll agree, a fact!

He is a barber. In the game for years, about twenty-five. An up and coming citizen. Who's very much alive. He's very fond of sports you'll note. Horse racing! Hope to tell. You'll find if you should quiz him. He's got the dope down well.

He is an Elk. He likes to hunt. And likes to fish a trout. And then bring home for table. The spoils of gun or hook. You'll find if you should quiz him. (In fact there's some fishing. That manna feeds him well. For breakfast every day.

The oath of office was taken by Mr. Winstead last week and he immediately took the bench.

Mr. Winstead has been a life-long member of the Democratic party and has been prominently identified in Idaho legal circles for the past 22 years. He was born in this city in July, 1884. He attended public schools here and attended Michigan University receiving his A. B. degree in 1907 and his L. B. degree in 1909. Immediately after graduation he went to Idaho and the Michigan bar the same year. He is a member of Sigma Chi, men's national social fraternity, is a Shrine and a member of the Elks and Eagles lodges.

Charles Winstead is the son of the late Judge J. P. Winstead who held office here as probate judge.

WM. BARTELS DIES TUESDAY

Well Known Resident of This City Succumbs After Two Years' Illness.

William Bartels, aged 63, well known resident of this city for the past 32 years, passed away at his home, 418 Clinton-st, Tuesday at 4:55 a. m. of cerebral hemorrhages. He had been ill since June 2, 1928, his last illness being of eight weeks' duration.

He was born in Germany, Nov. 15, 1867, and was the son of John and Mary Ruchterman Bartels. He came to this city in 1899 and after long service with the Pennsylvania railroad as a foreman he was retired.

He was married in Lancaster, Nov. 26, 1889, to Henrietta Piper who survives him. The following children, Mrs. Anna Chandler, this city; George L. Bartels, Decatur, Ill.; John E. Bartels, Xenia; Mrs. D. F. Stout, Columbus, and Mrs. Harry Wallace, Columbus, also survive with eight grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. B. Schmelzer and Mrs. Harry Wachter, three brothers, Henry Bartels, Joseph Bartels, all of Lancaster, and John Bartels of Sabina.

He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Funeral arrangements in charge of Mader & Ebert, will be announced later.

MRS. STUMPF DIES IN LAURELVILLE

Mrs. Hattie L. Stumpf, aged 54, widow of William S. Stumpf passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. Sadie Karshner in Laurelville Monday afternoon. Heart disease caused her death.

She was the daughter of Allen and Margaret Thomas, both of whom are deceased. Surviving besides the sister at whose home she died, are two daughters, Mrs. Helen DeLong of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Catherine Sheets of Wellston.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Laurelville M. E. church with burial under the direction of H. E. Deffenbaugh and sons.

CLIMAX IN DAUGHERTY TRIAL NEAR

State, Defense Prepare Arguments in Washington C. H. Banker's Case

DEFENSE AT REST

Defendant Admits Never Paying Own Debts

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., Mar. 3.—Testimony that $179,578 was deposited to the credit of Mal S. Daugherty's personal account was presented by the state in rebuttal testimony today of the banker's trial on charges of fraud in connection with the collapse of the Ohio State Bank.

Cecil L. Hall, expert accountant, testified that the total Daugherty deposited during the time the now-defunct banking institution was opened from April 1, 1928 to May 12, 1930.

WASHINGTON, C. H. O., Mar. 3.—The climax in the trial of Mal S. Daugherty on charges of fraud in connection with the operations of the defunct Ohio State Bank of which he was former president, was rapidly approaching today as both state and defense counsel prepared to present their arguments for and against conviction.

Three hours probably will be consumed for the closing statements of the opposing attorneys. Another hour will be taken up by the court's charge to the jury. And after that, the fate of Daugherty, brother of Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the administration of President Harding, will be placed in the hands of 12 tried and true men.

MAY END WEDNESDAY

Unless arguments take longer than expected, the jurors who for four weeks have been listening to the technical details of the bank's collapse, will receive the former banker's case sometime Wednesday.

Daugherty's defense rested Monday afternoon following completion of cross-examination of Daugherty by Special Counsel Louis J. Schneider. The defense rested on condition, granted by Judge Charles S. Bell, that it could, upon motion, ask Daugherty other questions if deemed necessary after a night of deliberation.

As the state's cross-examination of Daugherty neared its close Monday, Schneider drew from the former bank president an admission that he had never paid a cent on his own indebtedness to the Ohio State Bank from the time it was formed by a merger of two other institutions to the day of its failure two years later.

Previous testimony had brought out that loans made to the accused banker's wife, under the name of L. H. Daugherty, also had never been paid. Notes to Mrs. Daugherty, according to evidence, totaled $42,100.

STATE MANAGER OF FAIR NAMED

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 3.—Appointment of Charles Beer of Ashland, O., as assistant director of agriculture and state fair manager was announced here today by I. S. Guthery, state director of agriculture.

Beer, who for several years served as director of the Ashland-co fair was at one time connected with former secretary of agriculture, Edward Meredith in the publication of Farm Journal at Des Moines, Iowa.

RATE IS SAME AS TAXED NOW FIGURES SHOW

Village Council O. K. on Schedule after Refusing Several Offers

OFFER SAME HERE

Logan is Faced with Rate Fight too, Story Says

Ashville's village council Monday evening put its official O. K. on a proposed gas rate to take effect in that village as soon as the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.'s present rate schedule expires. The Ashville council had been very reluctant about accepting a rate, refusing several propositions of the Ohio Fuel Gas but Monday evening, caught in a good spirit, they agreed to accept the proposed rates of the company for the next five years in divisions of two and three years, largely because of the 'good service rendered up by George Foerst, the local manager,' according to members of council.

RATE IS SAME

The rate which will be in effect for the next two years in Ashville is exactly the same as that operated under at the present time. That schedule is 20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet; 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for all over 500 cubic feet with a minimum bill of $1. These rates are according to gas used through each meter each month.

For the next three years then 1933, 1934, and 1935, the following rates will be used:

20 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet;

7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 1,500 cubic feet;

6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet;

5 1-2 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 195,000 cubic feet;

5 cents per 100 cubic feet for all in excess of 200,000 cubic feet with a minimum rate of $1.

Mr. Foerst, manager of the fuel company in this district stated Tuesday that the same proposition will be made to the council of this city although at a later date. He announced that a proposal would not be made at the council meeting here Wednesday evening.

LOGAN, O. (Special to The Herald).—An executive session of city council will be held this evening at which time the lawmakers will discuss the gas rate question. Last week when council met Mr. Wise of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. suggested that a higher rate would be asked on the ground that increased demand and decreased supply would make this action necessary.

It was pointed out that the increase probably would be asked at a rate of 72 cents per thousand whereas the present rate is 50 with a service charge of 50 cents per month. The representative pointed out the service charge would be abolished if the new rate is granted.

There is much opposition to the proposal.

IN RELATION TO THE ELEMENTARY RED AND BLACK

The elementary edition of the Red and Black makes its initial appearance today. Four years ago, the Circleville Herald pioneered in the publication of its section known as the Red and Black, Circleville's school newspaper.

In keeping with its motto announced at the time to edit "All the news, of all the pupils, to all those interested, all the time," Red and Black has continuously endeavored to relate a reliable account and to paint an accurate picture of student and faculty affairs in the local schools. As readers demanded more and more news and reporters were trained to get it, staff members found it increasingly difficult to cram five or six columns of news into a four column department.

So, again through the courtesy and liberal cooperation of the Circleville Herald, the Red and Black is allowed space under a two column caption for additional news. This the high school journalism class intends to devote to interests of the pupils of the elementary schools. Thus is born, we believe, the first elementary school's newspaper published as a section of a United States' daily.

To facilitate reading and as a means of identifying a news event with the school to which it belongs, all stories from one school are to be run under that particular school's head.

The Saturday Red and Black becomes a high school edition. It will regularly appear as usual.

Let it be understood that whatever inaccuracies of fact found in either edition are the product and responsibility of the student staff members credited as such with the reporting, typing, copy editing, proof reading, and make up of those editions.

Let us, before we step out of the first person and become impersonal reporters again, take this welcome opportunity to sincerely thank the Circleville Publishing Co., its managing editor, Karl Hermann; editor, Glen Geib; mechanical boss, Grady Randall, and the whole force for their unstinted support and cooperation. May we also assure our readers we begin this project as another step in fulfilling our promise, "All the news, of all the pupils, to all those interested, all the time."

Cops Don't Worry Them Much

These two girls, Lorraine Murphy and Catherine Sullivan, were enjoying a hectic party with six boy friends in New York City, when detectives walked in and invited them to the police station.

Stein, principal, gets a "big kick" out of watching boys fly kites.

She stated Friday afternoon, "I don't believe I ever saw the children get as much pleasure out of recess as I did today. Everyone had a good time." She further stated that the only trouble they have is "getting the pupils back into their class room when the bell rings."

Walnut-st reports 5 new pupils enrolled. Luella and Floyd Stonerock, fourth grade, and James Stonerock, first grade, have moved here from Commercial Point. Frances Patton, from Clarksburg, and Louise Morrison, from Columbus, have also enrolled in the first grade.

FRANKLIN FORUM

"Life of George Washington" was the topic of Rev. Emil S. Tonsmeier, last Monday, when he addressed the sixth grade. Mr. Tonsmeier told of many interesting features of Washington's life. He also showed slides of "America the Beautiful."

Motion pictures of scenes of the western states were shown fifth grade by teachers of that section. These pictures are used in study of geography.

Spelling contest held, Friday, between the two fifth grades, was won by the fifth B class.

Lois Quann, first grade, withdrew and moved to Washington, D. C.

BUCKEYE HAS TEN STAFF MEMBERS

The staff of the eighth grade monthly newspaper, The Buckeye which is in charge of Miss Emily Yates includes: editor-in-chief, Florence Gilmore; editorial writers, Tom Kirwin, Isabella Heskett, artists, Kirmat Wilson.

Six students bring in most of the news. They are: A class representatives: Virginia Cady, Roderick Watts. B class representatives, Louis Cummings, Arthur Gookman; C class representatives: Paul Conley, Mary Starkey.

HIGH-ST HISTORY

Members of the sixth class held a meeting Monday evening to elect new officers for the Weekly Reader's club. Following are the newly elected members: president, James Cassidy; vice president, David Jackson; secretary, Dick Mader; and treasurer, Louise Helwagen.

WIN PRIZES

Kathryn Lockard and Mabel Cunningham were awarded first prize in a writing contest conducted in the fourth grade and were awarded blue ribbons. Other awards are: Betty McGinnis and Marjorie Comstock took second prize and red ribbons and Jane Huffer and Stanley Lewis earned grey ribbons as third prize. This class has also taken up the study of bird variety. Each student draws likenesses of birds and the members of the class make corrections.

FORM CLUB

Sixth grade class of girls met Tuesday, February 3, and formed a Sewing Club. This club met again Tuesday and began embroidery work. Meetings will be held every Tuesday and the next project will consist of crocheting angora tams. Members of this same class have been designing silhouettes of Lincoln in connection with their art class.

Sewing club has been started by girls of Miss Parks' class with the first project as embroidery work. These girls are expected to crocheting angora tams at the next meeting to be held Tuesday.

BRIEFS

Juanita Barnhart, sixth grade, has been awarded a large tube of mentholatum from the Mentholatum Company as a prize in an essay writing contest on "Care of the Skin."

Bill Gunning, freshman, provided a moving picture program for Miss Gladys Peters' fifth grade, Tuesday. This program consisted of photos taken from Yellowstone National park.

Miss Sophia Parks' sixth grade has been making scrap books of Europe and crocheting tams. Laddie Goeller has been absent for the past two months due to illness. The fourth grade sent him flowers last week.

This school was closed Monday due to sewer repairs.

Margaret and Betty Jane Lannan have entered the third grade from an out-of-town school.

Peggy Goeller celebrated Washington's and her own birthday, Tuesday, by giving a party, which all members of the first grade attended.

Pupils of the sixth grade have proven themselves very economical. They have bought goldfish with money saved earlier in the year.

Emily Gunning has withdrawn from Miss Gladys Peters' fourth grade to enter at Hollywood, Calif. Marvene Henness, Champaign, Illinois, and Jimmie Dalgare, Columbus, Ohio, entered the first grade, Monday.

George Strawser was transferred to the fourth grade from Corwin-st school.

Spelling test was given to this class by E. L. Daley in which the two highest scores were made by Mary McGinnis and Lewis Cooper with grades over 90.

Doris Cummings entered the fifth grade from Jefferson-twp. Hiram Hosler withdrew from the sixth grade and moved to Grove City.

143 SPECTATORS AT FIGHT HELD

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—The 143 spectators of an old-time cockfight who were surprised and arrested by state police near here yesterday morning today were awaiting hearing Tuesday night before Justice of the Peace Chalfant of South Brownsville.

The raid was a complete surprise to the entire crowd. Not a single person escaped, and to a man—and to a woman, too, three having come from Washington, Pa. to view the contest — they gave fictitious names, police declared.

Spectators waved hands in which were clenched wads of currency, hundreds of dollars having been wagered on the fight, police said.

The three birds that had been killed in previous fights and 43 live ones were seized by police as evidence.

PREJUDICE IS CAUSE OF 'CAN'

NEW YORK—Convicted of showing race prejudice against negroes, August Yodanis, a janitor for a Finnish club, today was expelled from the Communist party. The trial was the first held by communists in America. Two thousand communists heard the janitor accused of refusing to welcome three negroes at a dance.

The specific charge against Yodanis was "white Chauvinism." This consists of any violation of the principal proclaimed by communists of complete political, economic and social equality of white with negroes.

The janitor was told he might be reinstated if he led a demonstration against a cafe in Harlem which bars negroes and actively campaigned to do away with discrimination against negroes.

The 44-mile speed limit through the main street of Maple Heights, Ohio, was exceeded so frequently in 1930 that the village collected more than $20,000 in fines from motorists during the year.

FARM NEWS

A melon growers school has been arranged for Thursday, March 5th in Farm Bureau Home in Circleville at 10 a. m.

E. B. Tussing, Horticulture Department and A. L. Piersdorf, Pathologist, of the Ohio State University will assist County Agent Lewis with the program.

This program will consist of a discussion of melon varieties best adapted to this section of Ohio, fertilization of the melon crop and methods of combating disease and insect enemies of the crop. The melon industry in the Scioto Valley is becoming an important cash crop to a number of farmers. The buying public want good quality melons of high flavor. They are entitled to them. Proper fertilization accompanied with insect and disease control has a decided influence upon the quality of melons which the grower produces. Each year thousands of dollars worth of melons from other States throughout the Union, are brought into Ohio markets. Good melons produced in the Scioto Valley cannot be beat for quality and flavor, when properly handled.

Any melon grower interested, is welcome and invited to attend this meeting on next Thursday, March 5th.

SHEEP AND WOOL GROWERS TO HOLD SCHOOL

A series of schools have been arranged for the sheep and wool growers throughout Pickaway County which will start Tuesday morning at Frank Hudsons on Route 104, Scioto Township at 9:30 a. m. The Second meeting in the series will be held at Ira Fishers in Walnut Twp. on Tuesday afternoon, March 10th at 1:30 p. m. The third in the series will be held at Walter Miller's and Son on Route 56 just east of Mt. Sterling, Wednesday, March 11th at 9:30 a. m. and the 4th in the series will be held at Lawrence Goodmans, just west of the intersection of Routes 56 and 104 on Wednesday afternoon, March 11th at 1:30 p. m.

There are approximately 13,500 head of sheep in Pickaway-co from which Pickaway-co farmers derive 2 1-2 per cent of their farm income. The series of schools has been arranged to demonstrate flock management practices, through which greater economies may be obtained in the production of both lambs and wool. L. A. Kauffman, sheep specialist and Paul Fenkhouser Rural Economics Department, both from the Ohio State University will assist County Agent Lewis with the Schools on March 10th.

L. A. Kauffman, and J. F. Walker, secretary of the Ohio Sheep and Wool Growers Association will assist Mr. Lewis on Wednesday, March 11th.

Special features of the program will be, demonstrations on shearing sheep; castrating and docking lambs.

The program throughout this series will carry a real message for shepherds throughout the county. With wool and mutton prices on the present basis, the shepherds to survive, must study methods of cutting the corner on costs.

All sheep and wool men are invited to attend which ever of these meeting will best suit his convenience.

IN RELATION TO THE ELEMENTARY RED AND BLACK

The elementary edition of the Red and Black makes its initial appearance today. Four years ago the Circleville Herald pioneered in the publication of its section known as the Red and Black, Circleville's school newspaper. It, keeping with its motto announced at the time to edit "All the news, of all the pupils, to all those interested, all the time." Red and Black has continuously endeavored to relate a reliable and accurate picture of student and faculty affairs in the local schools. As readers demanded more and more news and reporters were trained to get it, staff members found it increasingly difficult to cram five or six columns of news into a four column department.

So, again through the courtesy and liberal cooperation of the Circleville Herald, the Red and Black is allowed space under a two-column caption for additional news. This the high school journalism class intends to devote to interests of the pupils of the elementary schools. Thus is born, we believe, the first elementary school's newspaper published as a section of a local newspaper.

To facilitate reading and as a means of identifying a news event with the school to which it belongs, all stories from one school are to be run under that particular school's head.

The Saturday Red and Black becomes a high school edition. It will regularly appear as usual.

Let it be understood that whatever inaccuracies of fact found in either edition are the product and responsibility of the student staff members credited as such with the reporting, typing, copy editing, proof reading, and make up of those editions.

Let us, before we step out of the first person and become impersonal reporters again, take this welcome opportunity to sincerely thank the Circleville Publishing Co., its managing editor, Karl Hermann, editor, Glen Gaby, mechanical boss, Grady Randall, and the whole force for their unstinted support and cooperation. May we also assure our readers we begin this project as another step in fulfilling our promise, "All the news, of all the pupils, to all those interested, all the time."

Don't Get Up Nights

Make This 25c Test

You need a bladder physio to drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Get a 25c test box of 5 grain Bukene Tablets, the bladder physio, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. Bukene, containing buchu leaves, Juniper oil, etc., works on the bladder as castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains arising from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular salary. FIVE TAKE COURSE

Supervisor of schools, E. L. Daley, Principal Miss Florence Hoffman, Corwin-st, Mrs. Edith Vlerbome, Miss Virginia Marion and Miss Ada Burgett, members of elementary schools' faculties, have enrolled in a geography extension course, given at Laurelville every Monday evening, by Miss Jane Atwood, of Ohio university.

Miss Atwood, who has just returned from a tour of Europe, gives a thorough and complete study of European geography, and is heartily recommended by members of the local class.

CORWIN COMMENT

The Clapp-Young Self-marking tests in arithmetic and language were given to the members of the entire seventh grade under supervision of Supervisor E. L. Daley during the past week. In arithmetic, Dorothy Beatty and Hilla Haecker had scores of 100, which was the highest possible score. Median was 76 and low 52.

In language test Mary Hall, Matilda Davis, and Alice Griner, with 94 were three highest. Highest possible score was 100, median 77, and low 52.

MAKE GEOGRAPHY CHARTS
 Pupils in Miss Ruth Stout's seventh grade A geography class have been making geography charts showing the value of exports going out of the United States during the year.

This is a special project in connection with the regular geography course.

Miss Margaret Fohl, former fifth grade teacher, substituted in the absences of Mrs. Edith Vlerbome and Miss Bernice Buskirk during the past week.

WALNUT-ST. NOTES

Kite flying seems to be a great sport at Walnut-st. Even the teachers are interested. Miss Ethel

Cops Don't Worry Them Much

These two girls, Lorraine Murphy and Catherine Sullivan, were enjoying a hectic party with six boy friends in New York City, when detectives walked in and invited them to the police station. They went. Then the cops took the boy friends into another room and made them confess several burglaries. That did not worry the girls. They danced and sang lustily.

Stein, principal, gets a "big kick" out of watching boys fly kites.

She stated Friday afternoon, "I don't believe I ever saw the children get as much pleasure out of recess as I did today. Everyone had a good time." She further stated that the only trouble they have is "getting the pupils back into their class room when the bell rings."

Walnut-st reports 5 new pupils enrolled. Luella and Floyd Stonerock, fourth grade, and James Stonerock, first grade, have moved here from Commercial Point, Frances Patton, from Clarksburg, and Louise Morrison, from Columbus, have also enrolled in the first grade.

FRANKLIN FORUM

"Life of George Washington" was the topic of Rev. Emil S. Tonsmeir, last Monday, when he addressed the sixth grade. Mr. Tonsmeir told of many interesting features of Washington's life. He also showed slides of "America the Beautiful."

Motion pictures of scenes of the western states were shown fifth grade by teachers of that section. These pictures are used in study of geography.

Spelling contest held Friday, between the two fifth grades, was won by the fifth B class.

Lois Quann, first grade, withdrew and moved to Washington D. C.

BUCKEYE HAS TEN

STAFF MEMBERS

The staff of the eighth grade monthly newspaper, The Buckeye, which is in charge of Miss Emily Yates includes: editor-in-chief, Florence Gilmore; editorial writers, Tom Kirwin, Isabella Heskett, artists, Kimit Wilson.

Six students bring in most of the news. They are: A class representatives: Virginia Cady, Roderick Watts. B class—representatives, Louis Cummings, Arthur Goodman; C class representatives: Paul Conley, Mary Starkey.

HIGH-ST. HISTORY

Members of the sixth class held a meeting Monday evening to elect new officers for the Weekly Reader's club. Following are the newly elected members: president, James Cassidy; vice president, David Jackson; secretary, Dick Mader; and treasurer, Louise Helwagen.

WIN PRIZES

Kathryn Lockard and Mabel Cunningham were awarded first prize in a writing contest conducted in the fourth grade and were awarded blue ribbons. Other awards are: Betty McGinnis and Marjorie Comstock took second prize and red ribbons and Jane Huffer and Stanley Lewis earned grey ribbons as third prize. This class has also taken up the study of bird variety. Each student draws likenesses of birds and the members of the class make corrections.

FORM CLUB

Sixth grade class of girls met Tuesday, February 3, and formed a Sewing Club. This club met again Tuesday and began embroidery work. Meetings will be held every Tuesday and the next project will consist of crocheting angora tams. Members of this class have been designing silverettes of Lincoln in connection with their art class.

Sewing club has been started by girls of Miss Parks' class with the first project as embroidery work. These girls are expected to crochet angora tams at the next meeting to be held Tuesday.

BRIEFS

Juanita Barnhart, sixth grade, has been awarded a large tube of mentholatum from the Mentholatum Company as a prize in an essay writing contest on "Care of the Skin."

FARM NEWS

A melon growers school has been arranged for Thursday, March 11th in Farm Bureau Home in Circleville at 10 a. m.

E. B. Tussing, Horticulture Department and A. L. Pierdorff, Pathologist, of the Ohio State University will assist County Agent Lewis with the program.

This program will consist of a discussion of melon varieties best adapted to this section of Ohio; fertilization of the melon crop and methods of combating disease and insect enemies of the crop. The melon industry in the Scioto Valley is becoming an important cash crop to a number of farmers. The buying public want good quality melons of high flavor. They are entitled to them. Proper fertilization accompanied with insect and disease control has a decided influence upon the quality of melons which the grower produces. Each year thousands of dollars worth of melons from other States throughout the Union, are brought into Ohio markets. Good melons produced in the Scioto Valley cannot be beat for quality and flavor when properly handled.

Any melon grower interested, is welcome and invited to attend this meeting on next Thursday, March 11th.

SHEEP AND WOOL GROWERS TO HOLD SCHOOL

A series of schools have been arranged for the sheep and wool growers throughout Pickaway County which will start Tuesday morning at Frank Hudsons on Route 104, Scioto Township at 9:30 a. m. The second meeting in the series will be held at Tra Fishers in Walnut Twp. on Tuesday afternoon, March 10th at 1:30 p. m. The third in the series will be held at Walter Miller's and Son on Route 56 just east of Mt. Sterling, Wednesday, March 11th at 9:30 a. m. and the 4th in the series will be held at Lawrence Goodmans, just west of the intersection of Routes 56 and 104 on Wednesday afternoon, March 11th at 1:30 p. m.

There are approximately 13,500 head of sheep in Pickaway county, of which Pickaway county farmers derive 2-1/2 per cent of their farm income. The series of schools has been arranged to demonstrate flock management practices, through which greater economies may be obtained in the production of both lambs and wool. L. A. Kauffman, sheep specialist and Paul Frankhouser, Rural Economics Department, both from the Ohio State University will assist County Agent Lewis with the Schools on March 10th, 11th and 12th.

Special features of the program will be, demonstrations on shearing sheep; castrating and docking lambs.

The program throughout this series will carry a real message for sheepmen throughout the county. With wool and mutton prices on the present basis, the sheepmen to survive, must study methods of cutting the corner on costs.

All sheep and wool men are invited to attend which ever of these meetings will best suit his convenience.

PAIN IN YOUR SHOULDER P
 Use Tylenol for Relief

Kidney-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis, brought on by exposure to draughts or sudden changes of weather. In some cases there is stiffness or soreness in the muscles, making it difficult to raise the arm. The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply a small quantity of Tylenol over the throbbing aching peripheral nerves. Tylenol is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the soreness should disappear. Tylenol is absolutely harmless—free from dope. Recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Sold by leading druggists. Always go hand at MYKRANTZ DRUG STORE.

143 SPECTATORS AT FIGHT HELD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 26.—The 143 spectators of an old-time cockfight who were surprised and arrested by state police near here yesterday morning today were awaiting hearing Tuesday night before Justice of the Peace Chalfant, of South Brownsville.

The raid was a complete surprise to the entire crowd. Not a single person escaped, and to a man—and to a woman, too, three having come from Washington, Pa. to view the contest—they gave fictitious names, police declared.

Spectators waved hands in which were clenched wads of currency, hundreds of dollars having been wagered on the fight, police said.

The three birds that had been killed in previous fights and 43 live ones were seized by police as evidence.

NEW YORK—Convicted of showing race prejudice against negroes, August Volken, a janitor for a Finnish club, today was expelled from the Communist party. The trial was the first held by communists in America. Two thousand communists heard the janitor accused of refusing to welcome three negroes at a dance.

The specific charge against Volken was "white Chauvinism." This consists of any violation of the principal pre-labeled by communists of complete political, economic and social equality of white with negroes.

The janitor was told he might be reinstated if he led a demonstration against a cafe in Harlem which bars negroes and actively campaigned to do away with discrimination against negroes.

The 44-mile speed limit through the main street of Maple Heights, Ohio, was exceeded so frequently in 1930 that the village collected more than $20,000 in fines from motorists during the year.

Requests Eight Hour Per Day

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 3.—A public appeal to employers of Ohio to limit working periods to eight hours whenever feasible has been made by Thomas Edmondson, state director of industrial relations. The purpose is to distribute jobs among as many workers as possible and thus lessen unemployment.

"It has come to the attention of Adjutant General Frank Henderson, chairman of Governor George White's unemployment relief board, that in some industries shifts of 10 hours or longer are being worked," said Director Edmondson. "If these can be cut to eight hours without requiring an unfair sacrifice from employed men and without handicapping employers more workers will be absorbed and idleness will be decreased."

WORK SHIFTS
The state itself is required to adhere to eight hour shifts on public work by law and in addition to doing this it is restricting the working time of those employed on emergency highway work to four days a week or to alternate weeks in order to spread the available jobs among the greatest number of men.

"We have found among men now employed by private industry in shifts of more than eight hours a spirit of willingness to share their time with less fortunate idle men by reducing their hours to eight. So I am suggesting to employers that they study their individual operations carefully with a view to shortening hours and making room for more employees. Where this can be accomplished with the friendly co-operation of workers already holding jobs a very helpful contribution to relief of unemployment can be made.

"The eight hour day is generally accepted as beneficial to labor and to employer and most industries can adjust themselves to it."

To extend state aid where drouth and unemployment suffering is acute Governor White's relief committee is asking an additional emergency appropriation of $80,000.

This is to be distributed as follows: For drilling and operation of 65 safety wells at points selected by the state department of health, $10,000; for labor in clearing state lakes and improving parks and public lands in Auglaize, Mercer, Logan and Summit counties, $30,000; for cutting lumber, building roads and reforestation of state lands in Vinton, Ross, Scioto, Lawrence, Athens and Washington counties, $15,000; for repairs and improvements on Miami and Erie and Ohio and Erie canals, $10,000; for repairs on 16 armories in southern and southeastern Ohio, $15,000.

EFFECT SHOWN

"The state aid thus far given has had an appreciable effect in building up the spirits of those in distressed areas of the state," General Henderson announced.

"This coupled with the hope inspired by rains and snows in the drouth area has done much to improve conditions. While we are not beyond the peak of distress due to drouth and idleness we have been able to report to Governor White that the situation is well in hand, psychology of the sufferers has improved and about April the worst conditions will have been overcome."

OHIO COULD DO WELL LIKEWISE

Press reports show that the Michigan state legislature appropriated $200,000 in 1929 for the following two years and this money is being spent through the four touring bureaus, the state matching dollar for dollar, the expenditure of the associations. Michigan is a state that recognizes the tourist "industry" as big business and a highly competitive business. It realizes that, to compete with neighboring states and Canada, which also has tourist appeal, it must tell the world of its advantages as a summer and winter playground.

What is Michigan selling? As its department of conservation officials view the matter, it is marketing out-door recreation, the smell of pines, sunsets and dawns, scenic vistas, camping, fishing, hunting, bathing, boating, health and happiness. It sells the same product over and over again; it never grows old. Ohio with her Erie and state lake regions, scenic Southern Ohio, rich historical background and astonishing industrial development, might well let tourists know about those things.

Ohio markets are being flooded with "bulk" oranges this year. A ruling has gone out from the state Sealer of Weights and Measures that there is no standard weight per bushel for oranges. Sixteen-year-old Bessie was shot and wounded by the lead ball that was charged from the cartridge and he hurled against the city building in Boston, Mass.

Symbol of the Times

CIGARETTES are rapidly weaving old tobacco addicts from their pipes and cigars, but they deny that their disloyalty is due to the discovery of a better smoke in the cigarette. They philosophically (pipe and cigar smokers are traditional philosophers) accept the change as part of a social revolution.

The cigarette fits the tempo of the times. It has gained tremendously from the increase in smoking among women, of course, and no doubt it will gain more in that field. But that is not the whole story. Chewing tobacco has been for years largely a rural habit, attuned to country life and redolent of the soil, and pipes and cigars are born of leisure and serenity. A race geared to the speed of the automobile does not have time to enjoy a cigar, or to draw long on a pipe. It requires something which can be smoked and thrown away. It likes the swiftness, the smartness and the convenience of the cigarette.

The increasing use of cigarettes is, indeed, a reflection of the social life of the times. They fit a race geared to package goods. Relatively speaking, can-openers have enjoyed as great an increase in popularity as cigarettes, and for the same reason—they save time and trouble. Cigars and pipes demand concentration, and this is an age when men must do several things at the same time and concentrate on none.

This explains why those who would banish Lady Nicotine have never gained much ground against the cigarette. They were fighting against a social change, not merely a commercial commodity that appeared wicked to them. It would be presumptuous to say that the cigarette is here to stay, but it will stay until made obsolete by the quickening or slowing up of the tempo of the people.

Penalized for the Few

THE upward swing of rates on automobile liability insurance is an unpleasant reminder to safe motor-vehicle drivers that they as well as reckless motorists must pay costs for which the latter are largely responsible. The penalty of high rates is imposed by the reckless driver, not by the insurance companies.

Ultimately, it may be hoped, progress will be made in separating the sheep from the goats and gradually a fairer share of the burden of insurance will be placed where it belongs—on the unsafe driver.

Even the operator who escapes accidents over a long period of years would probably agree that when he is involved in a crash through his own fault he should be treated as a more hazardous risk and pay accordingly for insurance until the lapse of a certain period of time without an accident.

Nor does it seem too much to say that the driver, who has demonstrated by a long record free of accidents that he is a good risk, should receive some reward in the way of a lower rate for his care and caution. Some companies do allow this type of driver a discount, but his rate is ever rising due to the recklessness of others.

The state must give some thought to the driver, who, because of habitual recklessness, can no longer obtain liability or property damage insurance. Is he entitled to driving rights, if he persistently ignores the rights of others and furnishes no financial guarantee of others' rights?

Preservation

WHEN prosperity prevails, men give their attention to the creation of new wealth; when business depression prevails, men devote themselves to the preservation of their wealth. Man's reactions to the bonanza and the bonanza are diametrically opposite.

A depression has at least one constructive influence; it makes people think; it makes them contemplate what the future may bring; it makes them desirous of fortifying themselves against adversity; it makes them determined to insure protection for their dependents in the years to come.

Since that "Black October" there has been in the United States more painstaking and scientific planning for the future than in any corresponding period in history. There have been stock market crashes and business depressions before this, but never before were

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, beautiful and romantic, heeds her mother's warning against marrying a poor man and gives up Mat Tully. She accepts the attentions of Jack Beamer who plans to divorce his rich wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy marries Roger Decatur, a handsome ranger. At first she is happy in his mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a long trip, she flies to her home. Without informing her family of her marriage, she re-enters the old social life. Beamer is as ardent as ever, but Nancy repulses his embraces. Roger's letters arouse Mrs. Hollenbeck's suspicions. Nancy pleads with Roger to meet her at a hotel. She waits in vain. Beamer enters the lobby and takes her to tea. She tells him of Roger but not of the marriage. Beamer receives a jolt when his wife refuses to divorce him. Beamer continues to court Nancy clandestinely. Then Roger arrives.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"CHARGE it, Miss?" The driver recognized her.

"No, I'll pay for it this time," she said hastily. She couldn't let Jack Beamer pay when she was coming to meet someone else. Her husband met her. The bright color flamed in her cheek. Feeling utterly lost and at a disadvantage, she gave a defiant twinkle to her hat, and looked around for Roger.

He should have been standing outside, eagerly waiting. Not that she expected it. She had made up her mind never to expect anything kindly or good of Roger again. It was the armor she built round herself, so that he could never hurt her again.

She was almost on top of him before he saw her.

"Nancy, sweetheart!" All the weariness dropped from him, all the doubt and the fears. He was seeing her again. His Nancy. His long arm shot out, as if to press her to him, right there in the waiting room; with dull eyed tourists sitting watching, and somebody's dirty faced child munching a popcorn ball staring right into Roger's glowing face.

She stepped back hastily, gave him one small cold hand. She said with hard, cold brightness that chilled him more than she meant it to. "Yes, here I am . . . and here you are, at last!"

It wasn't that she wanted to hurt him. She was so soft at heart, so ready to melt into tears, to throw herself upon him and cry, "Don't leave me—don't let me go again!" at sight of his lean brownness, his clear blue eyes. She needed that bright, hard armor, she clung to it like a shield.

He took her hand and looked down at his boots, shiny and new for the trip. He had forgotten everything he meant to say.

They were standing there in the station with the sticky child edging nearer and nearer, staring from her to Roger, and back again with round, interested eyes, and his mouth wide open.

"Where did you want to take me?"

Nancy Leads.

He flushed and looked at his bag. So she wasn't going to take him home; he wasn't going to meet her people, even yet. "Why, I . . . anywhere you like," he said lamely.

"I suppose we could go somewhere and talk."

"Yes, that's it. Where could we go?"

She led the way to where the taxis were waiting.

"Where to, sir?"

"Where shall we go, Nancy?"

There he was, leaning on her, making her decide when she was so tired, and it seemed any minute that she might be sick. But she sat patiently. "You'll want to get rid of that bag. Don't you want to go to a hotel first and register, that is, if you're staying over tonight?"

The victims so large in number. The old adage, "easy come, easy go," has found a legion of unhappy illustrations, and many of those who suffered or who learned of the crushing losses of others decided that the preservation of wealth is just as important as its accumulation.

So it is pertinent to ask: "When your ship comes—what then?"

A man never loses his nerve until he needs it.

Civilization: The art of making life complicated.

Some people are so absent-minded they forget themselves.

A bit of gossip too good to keep may be too good to be true.

And among the poor that are with us always is poor coffee.

A politician is a man who can fan a prejudice until it blazes into a cause.

An old-timer is one who can remember when it seemed funny to call two people a family.

Remorse: The quality that reminds you of a mortgage every time you see a filling station.

Another good way to retain your faith in your fellowman is to make him sign on the dotted line.

Although he is 82 years old, Geo. A. Wallace, Cleveland (O.) fire department member, recently helped to fight a fire for 4 hours in a blinding snowstorm with the temperature below freezing.

During 1930, more than $50,000 was expended for candies and cookies by inmates of the San Quentin (Calif.) prison.

"Yes—that's a good idea. What hotel?"

She told him that, too, and there was another heavy silence. He could not talk with the chauffeur's head so near, and Nancy, his own wife, so cold and changed.

"Did you come down on business?" she asked, still in that bright, hard voice.

"Yes. A rush trip. I'll be pulling out in the morning."

So it was business that brought him. Not she. She was just to fill in some empty time.

She bit her lip and struggled furiously to hold back the tears. Don't cry, silly! What did you expect? If he could ignore you when you begged him to come, is it likely he'd get a change of heart? Besides, what do you care? You're through with him, aren't you?

With a bottle-green "button" carrying the battered bag, they went out at the best hotel. Nancy sank into a chair to wait.

"Single room and bath?" the clerk asked, and while he was summing up another button to carry the bag upstairs Roger came over to where Nancy sat.

"Would you stay here with me?" he asked shyly. He was ashamed because he had made up his mind he wouldn't meet her on any such terms. It was to be an honest facing of the music with her family or nothing at all. But since business had brought him . . .

"Please," he begged.

"How can you ask such a thing?" she whispered. Her cold hands writhed in her lap. He might have been a stranger, insulting her, she looked so hurt and ashamed.

Without another word he turned and followed the bellhop to the elevators. She waited, a miserable enough little figure, sunk in the big blue chair.

When he came back she motioned him to the chair beside her. "But we can't talk here!" he cried.

"Nancy, let me take you somewhere else. Some place where we can talk. Something has happened. I don't know what, but I've got to find out what it is!"

"You're asking ME that? After you . . . you . . . Words failed her.

His jaw dropped. He stared at her in genuine astonishment. "What have I done?"

"Well, really . . ." She had made up her mind not to talk about it. It wouldn't do any good, but . . . The little spark of hope that never quite dies while you love flared in her heart, warming it, setting it to beating fast . . .

"Really, if you don't know . . . oh, Roger, can't you see how you hurt me? I begged you to come—I put pride in my pocket—I waited and waited . . . It was no use; she couldn't keep her voice steady—"and you didn't come."

"Darling, I couldn't come. I couldn't get away. I told you that couldn't! Oh, Nancy, I can't make you understand. We don't speak the same language. It's the city . . . all this artificial stuff."

He waved a long arm wildly, meaning the hotel, the crowd, the used up air they breathed. "I can't talk to you here. Come back, Nancy. Try it again. Come back home. We love each other . . . we were happy . . . we'll be again. You do love me, girl? You do, I know you do, and I . . . well I thought I knew how much you meant to me, but I didn't. I didn't know till you went away. That night when I found you gone, I . . . oh, well I guess you know, Nancy . . ."

She was trembling violently, biting her lower lip until it bled. There came a pounding in her ears, blackness that blotted out the hotel lobby, blotted out the world, her good resolutions. Everything but Roger, Roger and she.

Out came her hand, groping for his.

"Stay with me, Roger. Stay with me. Don't go back . . . ever!"

In the lobby of Oakland's best hotel they held hands, shamelessly. They whispered confidences . . . "I slept with your letters under my pillow! . . . Nancy, how can I ever make up to you . . . how can I ever make you happy enough?"

And she cried recklessly. "By giving up that miserable mountain job, Roger. That hateful work that made us almost lose each other!"

He didn't understand. "Giving up my job! Why, whatever would I do?"

"Sell real estate. I've thought it all out. Mr. Craig—"

"Sell real estate! Me!" He threw back his head and roared. "That's a picture!"

"There's all kinds of money in it. Mr. Craig—May Belle Craig's father—would give you a position. We could get a little apartment down town. You wouldn't have to give up the outdoors, either. Mr. Craig could put you up for the country club. Golf and tennis."

He was staring at her as though she had lost her mind. "I told you about it in my letter!"

"But, good God, I didn't think you were serious!"

She began to pluck at the pleats of her skirt. "I don't know why not. You don't know why not! Why, Nancy girl, you can't expect a man to give up his life work to play golf!"

"You don't have to play golf if you don't want to."

They tried to laugh, to laugh away the fear that had them both, pulling them apart . . . further . . . further . . .

"I took a degree in forestry . . . you wouldn't have me let it go to waste?"

"Look at my finger nails—all shiny and long again. Am I to waste them scrubbing in the backwoods?"

The Decision.

"Oh, if that's the way you feel about it . . . Scrubbing . . . so that was what she remembered most about their honeymoon in the cabin. Scrubbing. Then she really didn't love the mountains . . . she had just been pretending. That was why she left . . . He was red to his ears.

"If you care more about your job than me!" She knew he didn't, of course. She waited for him to deny it, to promise to come to town, to tell her nothing mattered but her.

"Why didn't he speak? 'It's me or the job, Roger!' He re-dented the crown of his Stetson hat.

"Make up your mind. I won't go back to that shanty; you shouldn't ask me to. If you loved me you'd stay here!" Nerves made her shrewish.

He said slowly, "You know I love you. I'll always love you. But I can't give up my work, girl. You shouldn't ask me to—"

"It's the first thing I ever asked of you."

"I can't do it, Nancy."

They stared at each other, strangers . . . they who were man and wife. For that part that they could no longer hear each other calling. Lost . . . lost . . .

"I could arrange so you didn't have to scrub any more. Nancy, if I could just make you see—"

He stopped because he saw that it was useless; she wouldn't listen. "I'm sorry, but it's too late now," she said with polite regret. She had remembered that you must smile and look animated when you talk in hotel lobbies, else people will look at you, and wonder . . .

"We made a mistake, Roger. We were foolish to think we could ever patch it up. I'm going to get a divorce."

Symbol of the Times
CIGARETTES are rapidly wearing old tobacco addicts from their pipes and cigars, but they deny that their disloyalty is due to the discovery of a better smoke in the cigarette. They philosophically (pipe and cigar smokers are traditional philosophers) accept the change as part of a social revolution.

The cigarette fits the tempo of the times. It has gained tremendously from the increase in smoking among women, of course, and no doubt it will gain more in that field. But that is not the whole story. Chewing tobacco has been for years largely a rural habit, attuned to country life and redolent of the soil, and pipes and cigars are born of leisure and serenity. A race geared to the speed of the automobile does not have time to enjoy a cigar, or to draw long on a pipe. It requires something which can be smoked and thrown away. It likes the swiftness, the smartness and the convenience of the cigarette.

The increasing use of cigarettes is, indeed, a reflection of the social life of the times. They fit a race geared to package goods. Relatively speaking, can-openers have enjoyed as great an increase in popularity as cigarettes, and for the same reason—they save time and trouble. Cigars and pipes demand concentration, and this is an age when men must do several things at the same time and concentrate on none.

This explains why those who would banish Lady Nicotine have never gained much ground against the cigarette. They were fighting against a social change, not merely a commercial commodity that appeared wicked to them. It would be presumptuous to say that the cigarette is here to stay, but it will stay until made obsolete by the smoking or slowing up of the tempo of the people.

Penalized for the Few
The upward swing of rates on automobile liability insurance is an unpleasant reminder to safe motor-vehicle drivers that they as well as reckless motorists must pay costs for which the latter are largely responsible. The penalty of high rates is imposed by the reckless driver, not by the insurance companies.

Ultimately, it may be hoped, separating the sheep from the goats and gradually a fairer share of the burden of insurance will be placed where it belongs—on the unsafe driver.

Even the operator who escapes accidents over a long period of years would probably agree that when he is involved in a crash through his own fault he should be treated as a more hazardous risk and pay accordingly for insurance until the lapse of a certain period of time without an accident.

Nor does it seem too much to say that the driver, who has demonstrated by a long record free of accidents that he is a good risk, should receive some reward in the way of a lower rate for his care and caution. Some companies do allow this type of driver a discount, but his rate is ever rising due to the recklessness of others.

The state must give some thought to the driver, who because of habitual recklessness, can no longer obtain liability or property damage insurance. Is he entitled to driving rights, if he persistently ignores the rights of others and furnishes no financial guarantee of those rights?

Preservation

WHEN prosperity prevails, men give their attention to the creation of new wealth; when business depression prevails, men devote themselves to the preservation of their wealth. Man's reactions to the bonanza and the depression are diametrically opposite.

A depression has at least one constructive influence, it makes people think; it makes them contemplate what the future may bring; it makes them desirous of fortifying themselves against adversity; it makes them determined to insure protection for their dependents in the years to come.

Since that "Black October" there has been in the United States more painstaking and scientific planning for the future than in any corresponding period in history. There have been stock market crashes and business depressions before this, but never before were

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, beautiful and romantic, heeds her mother's warning against marrying a poor man and gives in Mat Tully. She accepts the attentions of Jack Beamer who plans to divorce his rich wife and marry Nancy. On a mountain trip, Nancy marries Roger Decatur, a handsome ranger. At first she is happy in his mountain cabin, but when he leaves on a long trip, she flees to her home. Without informing her family of her marriage, she re-enters the old social life. Beamer is as ardent as ever, but Nancy repulses his embraces. Roger's letters arouse Mrs. Hollenbeck's suspicions. Nancy pleads with Roger to meet her at a hotel. She waits in vain. Beamer enters the lobby and takes her to tea. She tells him of Roger but not of the marriage. Beamer receives a jolt when his wife refuses to divorce him. Beamer continues to court Nancy clandestinely. Then Roger arrives.

CHAPTER XXXVI.
"CHARGE IT, MISS?" The driver recognized her.
"No, I'll pay for it this time," she said hastily. She couldn't let Jack Beamer pay someone else's bill. The bright color flamed in her cheek. Feeling utterly lost and at a disadvantage, she gave a defiant twinkle to her hat, and looked around for Roger.
He should have been standing outside, eagerly waiting. Not that she expected it. She had made up her mind never to expect anything kindly or good of Roger again. It was the armor she built round herself, so that he could never hurt her again.

She was almost on top of him before he saw her.
"Nancy, sweetheart!" All the weariness dropped from him, all the doubt and the fears. He was seeing her again. His Nancy. His long arm shot out, as if to press her to him, right there in the waiting room; with dull eyes staring and watching, and a somber, furtive smile, as if munching a popcorn ball staring right into Roger's glowing face.
She stepped back hastily, gave him one small, cold hand. She said with hard, cold brightness that chilled him more than her meant it to. "Yes, here I am. . . and here you are, at last!"

He wasn't that she wanted to hurt him. She was so soft at heart, so ready to melt into tears, to throw herself upon him and cry, "Don't leave me—don't let me go again!" at sight of his lean brownness, his clear blue eyes. She needed that bright, hard armor, she clung to it like a shield.
He took her hand and led her down at his boots, shiny and new for the trip. He had forgotten everything he meant to say.

They couldn't go on standing there in the station with the sickly child edging nearer and nearer, staring from her to Roger, and back again with round, interested eyes, and his mouth wide open.
"Where did you want to take me?"
He flushed and looked at his bag. So she wasn't going to take him home; he wasn't going to meet her people, even yet. "Why, I . . . anywhere you like," he said lamely.

"I suppose we could go somewhere and talk."
"Yes, that's it. Where could we go?"
She led the way to where the taxis were waiting.
"Where to, sir?"
"Where shall we go, Nancy?"
There he was, leaning on her, making her decide when she was so tired, and it seemed any minute that she would faint. But she said patiently, "You'll want to get rid of that bag. Don't you want to go to a hotel first and register, that is, if you're staying over tonight?"

ONE BLESSING OF THE WORLD DEPRESSION

Erysipelas Is Usually Preceded by Infection
—Slight Wound or Break of the Skin May Start It

This Disease, Once Spoken of as "St. Anthony's Fire," Is No Longer Regarded as Contagious, Says Authority, Listing Symptoms

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is interesting to browse through the old text books on medicine. If you did this, you would in all probability run across a disease spoken of as "St. Anthony's Fire." It was regarded as contagious. It was greatly dreaded because it usually spread like fire from one person to another.

Because of this, the disease was regarded as being contagious. Today it is not so considered, nor is it frequently seen.

There are several forms of the disease, the most common being a variety in which the skin is involved. This disease is always preceded by a wound, a scratch, or a break of the skin. This may have been very slight and indeed may not have been noticed at all.

There is always sudden fever, with chill and intense local redness of the part involved. The original infection may be in the mouth, nostril, throat, ear, between the fingers or toes, at the margin of a nail, or in the folds of the skin itself.

Erysipelas is believed to be due to a certain germ called the "streptococcus." It spreads rapidly from one part of the body to another. On the first or second day there is a redness of the skin. The redness spreads in patches. There are swelling and pain under the skin. These symptoms are followed by intense burning and itching.

A Self-Limiting Disease
About the fourth day the skin disturbance begins to disappear. After seven or eight days the patient shows signs of improvement.

This condition is spoken of as a self-limiting disease. Most cases speedily improve, requiring little medical attention. However, it is important that nursing care and medical attention be given to avoid any of the undesirable complications of erysipelas.

The diet should be nutritious but light. Water should be given in great amounts. If the fever is high the patient should be bathed and sponged frequently. Local applications are frequently applied, but all the treatment should only be given upon the advice of a physician.

The country is still waiting for someone to criticize the impartiality of the Wickersham report.

BUFFALO BILL got his start in life by supplying buffalo meat to the builders of the Union Pacific Railway and keeping the Indians away. Tim McCoy got his by supplying Indians to the moving pictures. Buffalo Bill acquired a unique name which gave him the requisite push along the Hall of Fame; Tim McCoy acquired an occupation which has resulted in more publicity through the agency of the screen than Buffalo Bill ever had in days of his glory.

Furthermore, if Buffalo Bill qualified as an expert in buffalo meat, Tim McCoy certainly is well qualified in the line which brought him fame. McCoy was born in Saginaw, Michigan, but early in life moved westward through the love of adventure. He grew up on the plains inhabited mainly by tribes of Indians, who are now settled there on government reservations.

THAT all of the arguments advanced in behalf of trading at home apply with triple force during times when business is not running in high gear. When you carry fifty of your dollars to a trading area away from home, the twenty dollars which is profit is put to work supplying work for men who will never visit your established plant.

When times are normal there isn't the urge to keep the home fire burning that there is when business is a bit hard to locate. During normal times you can perhaps placate yourself that you are spending your own money and, regardless of where you spend it, you are helping general business.

Business today, however, is not general. It has become localized and the community that has the loyalty of its own citizenship is the community that is occupying the white spot on the business map.

The old excuse that "our merchants are not awake and do not carry the line of goods I want" is out of date today. Present day selling methods have jizzed up the local merchants generally, and the chances are ten to one that where you live the merchants today have stores stocked with seasonable merchandise of quality and at prices that will surprise you.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL LOYAL PEOPLE TO COME TO THE AID OF THEIR OWN COMMUNITIES BY SPENDING THEIR MONEY WHERE THE PROFITS WILL BE USED TO BANISH THE WORD "UNEMPLOYMENT." A BUSY CITIZENSHIP IS A CONTENTED ONE AND SPELLS PROSPERITY.

Requests Eight Hour Per Day

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 3.—A public appeal to employers of Ohio to limit working periods to eight hours whenever feasible has been made by Thomas Edmondson, state director of industrial relations. The purpose is to distribute jobs among as many workers as possible and thus lessen unemployment.

"It has come to the attention of Adjutant General Frank Henderson, chairman of Governor George White's unemployment relief board, that in some industries shifts of 10 hours or longer are being worked," said Director Edmondson. "If these can be cut to eight hours without requiring an unfair sacrifice from employed men and without handicapping employers more workers will be absorbed and idleness will be decreased."

WORK SHIFTS

"The state itself is required to adhere to eight hour shifts on public work by law and in addition to doing this it is restricting the working time of those employed on emergency highway work to four days a week or to alternate weeks in order to spread the available jobs among the greatest number of men."

"We have found among men now employed by private industry in shifts of more than eight hours a spirit of willingness to share their time with less fortunate idle men by reducing their hours to eight. So I am suggesting to employers that they study their individual operations carefully with a view to shortening hours and making room for more employees. Where this can be accomplished with the friendly co-operation of workers already holding jobs a very helpful contribution to relief of unemployment can be made."

"The eight hour day is generally accepted as beneficial to labor and to employer and most industries can adjust themselves to it."

To extend state aid where drouth and unemployment suffering is acute Governor White's relief committee is asking an additional emergency appropriation of $80,000.

This is to be distributed as follows: For drilling and operation of 65 safety wells at points selected by the state department of health, $10,000; for labor in clearing state lakes and improving parks and public lands in Auglaize, Mercer, Logan and Summit counties, $30,000; for cutting timber, building roads and reforestation of state lands in Vinton, Ross, Scioto, Lawrence, Athens and Washington counties, $15,000; for repairs and improvements on Miami and Erie and Ohio and Erie canals, $10,000; for repairs on 16 armories in southern and southeastern Ohio, $15,000.

EFFECT SHOWN

"The state aid thus far given has had an appreciable effect in building up the spirits of those in distressed areas of the state," General Henderson announced. "This coupled with the hope inspired by rains and snows in the drouth area has done much to improve conditions. While we are not beyond the peak of distress due to drouth and idleness we have been able to report to Governor White that the situation is well in hand, psychology of the sufferers has improved and about April the worst conditions will have been overcome."

vation, suggests that people visit them.

Fish hatcheries are public institutions, "manufacturing" plants, the products of which are distributed for the benefit of everyone.

As such they should be objects of public interest and the Conservation Division wishes to encourage visits to the stations.

"We want to encourage visits of school classes," Mr. Langlois says. "With the children seeing for themselves practical fish culture and learning what is being done to restore lakes and streams with fish, they will obtain a better appreciation the next twenty or thirty years."

--A sharp increase in the supply of farm labor and large decline in the demand has forced the level of farm wages to the lowest point since 1923, according to a statement by the Department of Agriculture.

--Farmers should not make private arrangements for making tubercular tests of their cattle on such private arrangement.

--A bill has been introduced in the Ohio house to prohibit the taking of claims on mussels from the streams of Ohio for commercial purposes.

--More than 45 per cent of the 219,000 farms in Ohio are served within their individual electric lighting plants or central stations, farm statistics show.

--Day wages of farm workers without beard, averages $1.87 for the country as a whole, ranging from $2.90 per day in the North Atlantic states to $1.25 in the South Central division. In many localities, the reports show, laborers are willing to work for their bed and board.

--Forty-six years in the fair business is the record of John H. Lowry, secretary of Henry-co Fair at Napoleon. Many consider him the oldest man in the state both in age and point of service.

--Only one farm in Ohio, that belonging to Glen Brown and son, New Paris, Preble county, furnished an official yield of 100 bushels of corn per acre on a ten acre plot in 1930.

OHIO COULD DO WELL LIKEWISE

Press reports show that the Michigan state legislature appropriated $200,000 in 1929 for the following two years and this money is being spent through the four touring bureaus, the state matching dollar for dollar, the expenditure of the associations. Michigan is a state that recognizes the tourist "industry" as big business and a highly competitive business. It realizes that, to compete with neighboring states and Canada, which also has tourist appeal, it must tell the world of its advantages as a summer and winter playground.

What is Michigan selling? As its department of conservation officials view the matter, it is marketing out-door recreation, the smell of pines, sunsets and dawns, scenic vistas, camping, fishing, hunting, bathing, boating, health and happiness. It sells the same product over and over again; it never grows Ohio with her Erie and state lake regions, scenic Southern Ohio, rich historical background and astonishing industrial development, might well let tourists know about those things.

Ohio markets are being flooded with "bulk" oranges this year. A ruling has gone out from the state Sealer of Weights and Measures that there is no standard weight per bushel for oranges, and they must be sold by dry measure, or by count.

Sixteen-year-old Paul P. Carabria was shot and seriously wounded by the lead ball that was discharged from the cartridge which he hurled against the side of a building in Boston, Mass.

GIRL IS FOUND DEAD IN DITCH

DETROIT, March 8.—Tossed by the roadside after she had been originally attacked, Anna Gabriel, 15 years old, is dead here today while police were pushing their investigations into what they term another "school-girl" murder.

Anna disappeared enroute to Junior high school Friday morning and with her body bruised and beaten she was found unconscious in a field on the outskirts of the city Saturday. She died yesterday without regaining consciousness.

Two youths, aged 17 and 22, are being held by police in connection with the case. No charges have been filed against them.

BILL IS RAPPED

NEW YORK.—The proposed legislation to further limit immigration will come before congress today in the outgrowth of malevolent propaganda against foreign born speakers at an immigrant aid society meeting here said.

Congressman F. H. LaGuardia said the state department was already administering immigration by "gang law" in Europe and had joined with "The American congress and the Ku Klux Klan to back a bill which will reduce the immigration quota 75 percent. "He charged the bill was "especially designed to block Jewish immigration."

So hard and tough was the steak which a Pittsburgh (Pa.) butcher hurled at the head of the bandit who attempted to hold him up that the robber was knocked unconscious.

In a beet-growing contest at Lake View, Utah, Garner Madden attained a record of almost 35 tons to the acre.

STATE MEETS HOLD INTEREST

COLUMBUS, O.—Class B state championship possibilities having been reduced from 950 to 250 in 86 county tournaments Friday and Saturday, basketball fans today awaited the result of a similar process of elimination scheduled in class A ranks in sectional high school meets this week.

From almost every county today came the word that favorites won in the week-end class B tournaments, bolstering the hopes of the favored in class A.

Delaware, Denison, Elyria, Ash-tabula, Akron, Warren, Bucyrus, Lima South, Sandusky, Defiance, Cincinnati and Dayton will be scenes of class A tournaments Friday and Saturday this week.

Portsmouth will be host to class A teams of the southeastern district a week later.

Winners and runners-up in the 86 county tournaments will fight it out for regional honors in other cities and towns this week, cutting the 250 class B eligibles to less than 100.

Class A teams at practice today for their week-end tournaments numbered 160. Not more than eight of these teams will be here for the state finals March 20 and 21.

Meanwhile, High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend is busy planning for the state tourney here, which, he said today, promises to be one of the best attended tournaments held since the tournament plan was adopted eight years ago.

MALONEY WILL FACE CARNERA

Fight is Transformed From So-so Into Important Bout; Winner Doubtful.

MIAMI, Mar. 3.—All of a sudden the Primo Carnera-Jimmy Maloney fight scheduled for Thursday night, today graduated from a so-so show into something of considerable importance. It became a possible shot at the world's title affair and just as swiftly the many times defeated Boston Heavyweight became a potential contender for highest ring honors.

The promise of Joe Jacobs, manager of Maxie Schmeling, to give Maloney a fight against the world's champion after his June fight with Young Stribling, providing Maloney wins from Carnera, started it and "Pa" Stribling's similar assurance made it pretty iron-clad.

Among those taking Maloney's chances seriously were Maloney himself and Jack Sharkey, the Boston savior, who has beaten his fellow townsman by decision, knockout and foul. Despite his various victories over Maloney, Sharkey thinks Jim has a chance to repeat his first victory over the Italian.

Promoter Bruen was to decide today whether the battle would be broadcast.

Carnera did not box yesterday because of rain and it was reported today he might not box in public again before the bout. Maloney did eight rounds of floorwork but did not put on the gloves. He weighed 198.

The contingent of Maloney rooters was enlarged today with the arrival of 150 Boston fans in a Boston special fostered by Eddie Mack.

MOUNT NEARS SEASON END

ALLIANCE, O.—Far in the lead in the Ohio conference as a result of its 14 victories, Mount Union's basketball team today prepared to close its season this week.

Akron plays here Tuesday night and Saturday night the Mount team goes to Wooster. Contests with Case and Oberlin last week accounted for wins No. 13 and 14. Heidelberg and St. Xavier, only other unbeaten teams in the conference, have closed their seasons. Heidelberg won six games and Xavier capped three.

Dopsters doubt if either Wooster or Akron have a chance of spoiling the Mount Union record.

BERLIN—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm will be a fascist candidate in the 1932 presidential elections, it was stated by the Berlin newspaper Welt Am Mittag today. The publication added that another member of the former imperial family, Prince Eitel Friedrich, had sworn allegiance to fascist aims.

PAYMENT OF LOANS WILL NET PROFIT REPORT SHOWS

WASHINGTON.—Under the rates at which the government will borrow money this month to finance payment of loans on veterans' bonus certificates, the treasury will make a profit of $30,000,000 annually, provided the total loans aggregate $1,000,000,000.

Secretary Mellon today announced the March financing which will take the form of $500,000,000 in 3½ per cent 12-year bonds, $600,000,000 in 2 per cent 12-month certificates and $300,000,000 in 1½ per cent 6-month certificates.

The bonds and the year certificates will be used to retire approximately $1,100,000,000 in 3½ per cent notes and the short term issue to pay bonus loans. Veterans must pay the government 4½ per cent interest on their bonus loans, or 3 per cent more than the government is paying for the money. Unless the interest is paid the value of the credit left on certificates virtually will be wiped out before their maturity.

The refinancing program of the treasury is somewhat at variance with that described to Congress when the administration was opposing the increased loan values of adjusted service certificates.

Under Secretary Ogden L. Mills expressed fear the bond market would be upset, that abnormally high rates would be required and that the March issues would amount to about $1,600,000,000.

At the time authorities expressed the belief that the program would be changed and the treasury would have little difficulty in floating a large security issue at extremely favorable rates.

It is possible the treasury program was changed at the last moment because of information received that Congress would not act favorably on the recommendation of Mellon that authority be extended for the issuance of $3,000,000,000 additional bonds under the Liberty loans act. Mills had indicated the March issue mostly would be in bonds—it was changed to both bonds and certificates, leaving an authority of $1,300,000,000 in bonds which may be issued later.

No doubt Mellon's recommendation for the authority to issue additional bonds will be renewed at the next Congress as approximately $8,000,000,000 in "Liberties" are callable in 1932 and 1933.

MANY WITNESSES

Witnesses were summoned to appear at the office of the clerk Tuesday at 9 a. m. with defense witnesses outnumbering state's witnesses in numbers. The fact that jurors were summoned for Tuesday morning lends weight to the belief that a jury will be obtained this afternoon.

Witnesses ordered for the state were Dr. John Mitchell of White Cross hospital; Dr. Frank Eaton of 9 Buttes-ave., Columbus; the following from Pickaway-co are Frank Mitchell, Ralph V. Wood, Walter Lewis, C. E. Thacker, Miller Fissell, Frank Davis, Dr. C. E. Bowers, Fletcher Graham, Mrs. Fletcher Graham, Mary Lewis and John Ward Jr.

For the defendant witnesses are Joe McKinley, Harrisburg; Dr. C. R. Smith, Harrisburg; Abe Keys, Bloomingsburg and the remainder from Derby; Ed. Sentif, C.E. Poulson, H. R. Matthes, Clarence Phillips, Harry Blaine, Dewey Downs, Milt Edwards, Warren Bauhn, M. C. Daugherty, Lewis Amos, Charles Taylor, John Blaine, Marion Cresap, Roy White, Ed Ridgway, James Gulick, Nick Webb, William Bauhn Jr., William McWhorter, Dr. Deyo, Harry Neff, Jack Davis, A. W. Minnich, Sherman Hoskins and R. N. Smith of Logan.

The courtroom was crowded early Tuesday but by orders of Judge Frank Clevenger on the bench the corridors were kept cleared by Court Bailiff Jake Young.

STATE APPEALS

COLUMBUS, O.—The state, on behalf of William D. Lee and C. Ray Morgan, today filed an appeal with the Ohio supreme court seeking reversal of a judgment of the Belmont-co appellate court favoring Judge Warren W. Cowen, Charles C. Bulger, receivers of the Belmont Collieries Co., and attorneys Walton J. Walker and Charles J. Lynch, counsel for Bulger.

For details see Gordon D. Kinder, Martins Ferry attorney, or J. E. Ladings and N. K. Kennon, St. Clairsville attorneys.

ASHVILLE

Mrs. Hazel Cloud was taken to St. Francis Hospital Columbus Monday afternoon and was operated on Wednesday morning. She is getting along as well as can be expected. This is the second operation for her in just a few months.

Mrs. C. C. Cloud has been sick with a bad cold the past week.

The local W. C. T. U. held their regular meeting Feb. 19 at Mrs. Effie Wigley. The program was on Frances Willard and Dunlap Day and was very interesting. A quick way out UNEMPLOYMENT is ended by giving people employment. Right now you can do two things to help. They are your opportunity—for to do them is to help friends, neighbors, fellow citizens. They are your privilege—for to do them is to create added insurance for keeping your own job.

Your Duty as a Citizen

Help your local government to hasten useful public works, to speed up appropriations, to cut red tape. Attend all community meetings for creating employment. Assure your local officials that you are behind them in all efforts to provide employment through organized activity. Subscribe if you can, to local relief for unemployed. THIS IS SOUND CITIZENSHIP.

Your Opportunity as an Individual

Give all the employment you can. If you have the money—start jobs of house-painting, carpentry, repairs, additions to your property. There are many things to be done, and now is a good time to do them, as you are buying material at very favorable prices. THIS IS SOUND INVESTMENT OF YOUR MONEY—AND SOUND PATRIOTISM.

COLUMBUS, O.—Class B state basketball possibilities having been reduced from 960 to 250 in the county tournaments Friday and Saturday, basketball fans today awaited the result of a similar process of elimination scheduled in class A ranks in sectional high school meets this week.

From almost every county today came the word that favorites won in the week-end class B tournaments, bolstering the hopes of the favored in class A.

Delaware, Denison, Elyria, Ash-tahula, Akron, Warren, Bucyrus, Lima South, Sandusky, Defiance, Cincinnati and Dayton will be second of class A tournaments Friday and Saturday this week.

Portsmouth will be host to class A teams of the southeastern district a week later.

Winners and runners-up in the 66 county tournaments will fight it out for regional honors in other cities and towns this week, cutting the 250 class B eligibles to less than 100.

Class A teams at practice today for their week-end tournaments numbered 160. Not more than eight of these teams will be here for the state finals March 20 and 21.

Meanwhile, High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend is busy planning for the state tourney here, which, he said today, promises to be one of the best attended tournaments held since the tournament plan was adopted eight years ago.

MALONEY WILL FACE CARNERA

Fight is Transformed From So-so Into Important Bout; Winner Doubtful.

MIAMI, Mar. 3.—All of a sudden the Primo Carnera-Jimmy Maloney fight scheduled for Thursday night, today graduated from a so-so show into something of considerable importance. It became a possible shot at the world's title affair and as swiftly the many times defeated Boston Heavyweight became a potential contender for highest ring honors.

The promise of Joe Jacobs, manager of Maxie Schmeling, to give Maloney a fight against the world's champion after his June fight with Young Stribling, providing Maloney wins from Carnera, started it and "Pa" Stribling's similar assurance made it pretty iron-clad.

Among those taking Maloney's chances seriously were Maloney himself and Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, who has beaten his fellow townsman by decision, knockout and foul. Despite his various victories over Maloney, Sharkey thinks Jim has a chance to repeat his first victory over the Italian.

Promoter Bruen was to decide today whether the battle would be broadcast.

Carnera did not box yesterday because of rain and it was reported today he might not box in public again before the bout. Maloney did eight rounds of floorwork but did not put on the gloves. He weighed 198.

The contingent of Maloney rooters was enlarged today with the arrival of 150 Boston fans in a Boston special fostered by Eddie Mack.

MOUNT NEARS SEASON END

ALLIANCE, O.—Far in the lead in the Ohio conference as a result of its 14 victories, Mount Union's basketball team today prepared to close its season this week.

Akron plays here Tuesday night and Saturday night the Mount team goes to Wooster. Contests with Case and Oberlin last week accounted for wins No. 13 and 14.

Heidelberg and St. Xavier, only other unbeaten teams in the conference, have closed their seasons. Heidelberg won six games and Xavier capped three.

Dopsters doubt if either Wooster or Akron have a chance of spoiling the Mount Union record.

BERLIN—Former Crown Prince Wilhelm will be a fascist candidate in the 1932 presidential elections, it was stated by the Berlin newspaper Welt Am Mittag today. The publication added that another member of the former imperial family, Prince Eitel Friedrich, had sworn allegiance to fascist aims.

DAPPER YOUTH FACES CHARGE

CHICAGO — Dapper Edward "Toddy" Dillon, was held by police today as the lone college boy bandit who staged five recent hotel holdups.

Between his appearances as the son of a multimillionaire, Dillon, according to police, turned bandit to replenish his funds.

Dillon, it was revealed, had been accepted in North Shore society circles here among the younger set, and was escorting the daughter of a prominent family Saturday night when arrested at a downtown theater.

The girl, a Northwestern University co-ed, explained she had met the youth at a fraternity dance where he was introduced as the son of a wealthy family.

Albert Baker, victim of one of the hotel robberies, caused Dillon's arrest when he saw the youth in the theater with the girl during an intermission. He called police.

Despite his protests that he was the son of a millionaire oil man and a graduate of a prominent eastern University, Dillon was taken to the police showup last night and later identified as the young bandit who robbed five hotels. Victims of several street holdups also identified the youth.

GIRL IS FOUND DEAD IN DITCH

DETROIT, March 8.—Tossed by the roadside after she had been criminally attacked, Anna Gabriel, 15 years old, is dead here today while police were pushing their investigations into what they term another "school-girl" murder.

Anna disappeared enroute to Junior high school Friday morning and with her body bruised and beaten she was found unconscious in a field on the outskirts of the city Saturday. She died yesterday without regaining consciousness.

Two youths, aged 17 and 22, are being held by police in connection with the case. No charges have been filed against them.

BILL IS RAPPED

NEW YORK—The proposed legislation to further limit immigration will come before congress today is the outgrowth of malevolent propaganda against foreign born speakers at an immigrant aid society meeting here said.

In Gordon's Death Probe Many Angles Brought Up

By James L. Kilgallen

NEW YORK, March 3.—Miss Cassie Clayton, of Erie, Pa., was projected into the spotlight today in the investigation into the mysterious murder of beautiful, red-haired Vivian Gordon, Broadway "girl about town" who was found strangled in Van Courtlandt Park early last Thursday.

Miss Clayton was at one time a friend and confidante of the slain woman. The last letter written by Miss Gordon -- a few days before she was "taken for a ride" -- was sent to Miss Clayton. In it Miss Gordon described the feeling of triumph she was experiencing because she was soon to appear as a witness in New York's sensational vice inquiry and tell how she had been "framed" by a policeman on a vice charge eight years ago.

Vivian wrote Cassie that she would be "vindicated" -- "It takes my last breath!"

Miss Clayton was to be brought to New York today under armed guard to relate her story to Referee Samuel Seabury, head of the vice inquiry, or his assistant Irving Ben Cooper. It was Cooper who talked to Miss Gordon five days before she was slain. At that time she promised to be a witness against New York's woman -- "framing" cops.

Significance was attached to the fact that Miss Clayton was questioned in Erie by Edward G. Parry, a process server attached to Referee Seabury's staff, and not by a representative of the New York police department. This indicated that Seabury is conducting an investigation independent of that of the police.

The police, ever since the murder four days ago, have been "cold" toward the theory that Miss Gordon was slain to prevent her from making disclosures concerning policemen in the vice inquiry. The police have inclined heavily toward the theory that she was killed for her $2,000 mink coat and $2,500 diamond ring.

Miss Gordon had claimed that in March 1923 she was "framed" by Policeman Andrew J. McLaughlin and her divorced husband, John E. O. Bischoff, of Washington, D. C. She was arrested in company with Al Marks on a vice charge. She was hailed into women's court and sentenced to Bedford reformatory. Her child, Benita, was taken from her and awarded to the husband. Ever since she harbored a grudge against McLaughlin and her husband and repeatedly promised to "get even."

McLaughlin and Bischoff, both of whom are now in New York, denied that they had participated in any "frame-up" such as she had threatened to reveal to Referee Seabury and his investigators.

Both Patrolman McLaughlin and Bischoff, and perhaps other witnesses, were to be called to testify today before the March grand jury in the Bronx. Bischoff professes an eagerness to help the authorities in every way he can. McLaughlin said he has "nothing to fear." He claimed he does not even remember Miss Gordon. He was in Bermuda on a vacation at the time the woman was slain. He arrived home yesterday. He was questioned for slightly over an hour and then released. He smilingly remarked he was "going back on my beat."

It was reported that Al Marks, the man with whom Miss Gordon was arrested in 1923, was preparing to surrender to the authorities. He was to appear at the office of District Attorney Charles E. McLaughlin with an alibi as to his whereabouts on the night of the crime.

Bischoff told reporters he would not claim the body of his former wife. She will be buried in Potter's field unless relatives claim the body. She is said to have left $30,000 to $50,000. Bischoff declared it was a coincidence that his divorce was granted on the day his wife was sentenced to Bedford reformatory, on March 18, 1923, about ten days after her arrest by McLaughlin.

Patrolman McLaughlin, when he was being questioned, produced a letter addressed to him, dated January 19, 1931, recalling to him "how you framed Benita Bischoff in 1923" and telling him she was going to "tell all" before the vice inquiry. The letter was signed "E. F. B." McLaughlin insisted he had no idea who the sender might be.

SCORE INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—With almost a score of persons injured, one seriously, police today began an investigation into the mysterious and terrific explosion which last night partially wrecked three apartment houses in West Philadelphia, drove a hundred frightened residents to the streets in scanty attire and shattered windows in nearby homes.

One girl, as yet unidentified, was reported to have suffered a fractured skull when the heavy blast let go. The other injured suffered lacerations and bruises.

CARETAKER OF HOUSE KILLED

CHICAGO, March 3.—Sprayed with a volley of machine gun bullets when he attacked a gang of five men as they were attempting to bomb an alleged gambling house in Blue Island, William Mayer, caretaker of the resort, was shot to death today.

Another man stepped in the line of fire and was shot through the head and seriously wounded before the machine gunners escaped.

OHIO HOTEL DESTROYED

Ten Guests Forced To Flee From Beds in Southern Ohio Village Blaze.

HARRISON, O., Mar. 3.—Ten hotel guests were forced to flee from their beds early today when a fire of unknown origin broke out, razing one building, causing heavy damages to two others and resulting in a total estimated loss of $60,000.

The Central hotel, a three-story brick structure, was damaged to the extent of $25,000. A two-story frame building, used as a dwelling and store, was practically destroyed. Another two-story frame structure was damaged.

The flames for a time threatened to wipe out the entire village, which is located astride the Indiana boundary in the northwest corner of Hamilton-co.

A call was put in to Cleves, near by, for assistance, but the fire department of that village was unable to reach the scene of the conflagration when their truck broke down enroute. Help was finally secured from Cheviot, a suburb of Cincinnati.

COOPER'S INQUIRY MYSTERY-FILLED

MONTEREY, Calif., March 3.—Authorities today expected to clear up the mystery which surrounds the appearance of Edna May Cooper, film actress and aviatrix, in a hospital here suffering from injuries she apparently sustained during her recent disappearance.

Complaining of a loss of memory and nervous shock, the co-holder of the women's endurance flight record asked for medical assistance at the hotel where she had been registered since Wednesday as "Caroline Hope."

Dr. Hugh Dornody found she was suffering from bruises on her head and right thigh and took her to a hospital.

News of Homes and Home Folks

VOL. 3. No. 9. Tuesday, March 3, 1931.

"TELLS"

"First Furnish Your Home—It Tells What You Are."

The meat of our slogan lies in that sixth word "tells." Your home does exactly that. It communicates to those who see it a knowledge of yourself, your good taste and judgment, your pride in your surroundings. Whether or not this tale is a true one depends solely upon you.

Pleasantly arranged rooms in which there is ample provision for comfort and convenience, in which color and design are related harmoniously—these tell our guests a story that we like to have told. They say: "Here is a family that puts home first in its obligations."

They tell the visitor: "You are welcome here." They declare to the important business caller: "This man you can rely upon; he will be loyal to you."

You never hear such conversations. Your guests may not even be conscious of them. But the impressions are made as surely as if the words had been uttered. Are your furnishings broadcasting the kind of messages you want other folks to hear? We'll be pleased to suggest new things that will enable you to make your home truly tell what you are.

WHAT will be discussed next Tuesday? Watch this space and see.

We've been "dabbling" in rugs for the past 15 years. Yes, we have sold hundreds of them to the people about Roundtown. But, it's been many a day since we have had such beautiful patterns at as low a price as prevail at this time. If anyone is in need of a rug, now is the time to buy, and here's the place to buy it. If you don't believe it, just drop in and see some of the new 1931 patterns and prices.

"Squire E. C. Friece was holding court the other day when a certain violator of the law was brought in for trial. In order that he might make a good impression on the "Squire, the violator said, "It's a fine day, "Squire." In reply, the "Squire said: "You're right and the amount of yours will be $10."

It is not a bit too late to drop in and order out one of those new $39.50 "sleep-producers" that we are selling at the unheard-of price of $23.50. Of course, we refer to those inner-spring mattresses that are made by a Nationally known mattress manufacturer that we advertised one day last week.

That's a beautiful front you have added to your drug-store in the Masonic Temple, Mr. Gleadell. It helps the looks of the old burg.

You folks that have radios have heard the Quaker Girl, and her crowd, tell about the Quaker felt-base rugs. Every Friday night, over WLW, comes the Quaker program, telling how easy it is to keep the Quaker rug clean and how well it wears. Of course, these folks are paid by the factory to tell you all of that boloney. But, when a local user tells the same story you can't call that boloney—it's the positive truth.

Mrs. Chas. Dean, R. 1, Laurelville, told us last week that the Quaker felt-base floor covering that she purchased two years ago, and placed in her dining room in her country home and which has had a tremendous traffic on it, has stood the test. She says that it looks as good as new although she has used nothing on it but a little soap and water. It's very clear why it has stood up so well—it's covered with ACCOLAC when made. So are the Quaker rugs.

Well, well, that second tank of Pyrofax Gas in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White, New Holland, is still functioning. It was on April 23, 1930, that we installed this gas outfit in their home and they have been using gas for cooking and baking ever since. Up to Feb. 23rd, it has been in use 10 months and has operated at an average cost per month of only $2.80, and it is still going. Wonder if it will run two more months and make it a full year for $28.00? And is Mrs. White delighted with her gas range? Just ask her. Any one, any where, may now have the pleasure of using gas for cooking and baking, and at a very low cost of installation and operation. Why not drop in and let us explain the new low prices?

Just recently, Mr. S. T. Rife was teaching the history class at Circleville Jr. High and he asked Tom: "Tom, where was the Declaration of Independence signed?" Tom replied, "At the bottom. I guess."

Some few weeks ago, we tried to warn the housewives about some birds that were traveling around selling floor-coverings. One Circleville lady didn't heed our warning and purchased of them. She asked for enough to make a 12x12 size (12 sq. yds.) and they sold her 10 sq. yards, and charged her 33c more than she could have purchased Armstrong's Quaker Felt-Base from us. They told her that she was buying "Armstrong's" but we couldn't find the pattern in their pattern-book. Wouldn't it have been better for her to have patronized a home-merchant?

It wouldn't do to publish an issue of RTT without saying a word about the Estate Gas Range. Today, we'd just like to say that Mrs. J. M. Kirwan reported that she baked an excellent cake in her new Model K. We knew she would do it, for the Estate gives perfect baking results every time. You can do the same as Mrs. Kirwan, if you'll let us install one of these fine ranges in your kitchen.

In Gordon's Death Probe Many Angles Brought Up

By James L. Kilgallen

NEW YORK, March 3.—Miss Cassie Clayton, of Erie, Pa., was projected into the spotlight today in the investigation into the mysterious murder of beautiful, red-haired Vivian Gordon, Broadway "girl about town" who was found strangled in Van Courtlandt Park early last Thursday.

Miss Clayton was at one time a friend and confidante of the slain woman. The last letter written by Miss Gordon — a few days before she was "taken for a ride" — was sent to Miss Clayton. In it Miss Gordon described the feeling of triumph she was experiencing because she was soon to appear as a witness in New York's sensational vice inquiry and tell how she had been "framed" by a policeman on a vice charge eight years ago.

Vivian wrote Cassie that she would be "indicated" — "It takes my last breath!"

Miss Clayton was to be brought to New York today under armed guard to relate her story to Referee Samuel Seabury, head of the vice inquiry, or his assistant Irving Ben Cooper. It was Cooper who talked to Miss Gordon five days before she was slain. At that time she promised to be a witness against New York's woman — "Framing" cops.

Significance was attached to the fact that Miss Clayton was questioned in Erie by Edward G. Perry, a process server attached to Referee Seabury's staff — and not by a representative of the New York police department. This indicated that Seabury is conducting an investigation independent of that of the police.

The police, ever since the murder four days ago, have been "cold" toward the theory that Miss Gordon was slain to prevent her from making disclosures concerning policemen in the vice inquiry. The police have inclined heavily toward the theory that she was killed for her $2,000 mink coat and $2,500 diamond ring.

Miss Gordon had claimed that in March 1923 she was "framed" by Policeman Andrew J. McLaughlin and her divorced husband, John E. O. Bischoff, of Washington, D. C. She was arrested in company with Al Marks on a vice charge. She was haled into women's court and sentenced to Bedford reformatory. Her child, Benita, was taken from her and awarded to the husband. Ever since she harbored a grudge against McLaughlin and her husband and repeatedly promised to "get even."

McLaughlin and Bischoff, both of whom are now in New York, denied that they had participated in any "frame-up" such as she had threatened to reveal to Referee Seabury and his investigators.

Both Patrolman McLaughlin and Bischoff, and perhaps other witnesses, were to be called to testify today before the March grand jury in the Bronx. Bischoff professes an eagerness to help the authorities in every way he can. McLaughlin said he has "nothing to fear." He claimed he does not even remember Miss Gordon. He was in Bermuda on a vacation at the time the woman was slain. He arrived home yesterday. He was questioned for slightly over an hour and then released. He smilingly remarked he was "going back on my beat."

It was reported that Al Marks, the man with whom Miss Gordon was arrested in 1923, was preparing to surrender to the authorities. He was to appear at the office of District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin with an alibi as to his whereabouts on the night of the crime.

Bischoff told reporters he would not claim the body of his former wife. She will be buried in Potter's field unless relatives claim the body. She is said to have left $30,000 to $50,000. Bischoff declared it was a coincidence that his divorce was granted on the day his wife was sentenced to Bedford reformatory, on March 18, 1923, about ten days after her arrest by McLaughlin.

Patrolman McLaughlin, when he was being questioned, produced a letter addressed to him, dated January 19, 1931, recalling to him "how you framed Benita Bischoff in 1923" and telling him she was going to "tell all" before the vice inquiry. The letter was signed "E. F. B." McLaughlin insisted he had no idea who the sender might be.

ORAN, Morocco.—The world's non-refueling airplane record was held today by the French airmen, Bousstrot and Rosst, who stayed aloft for 75 hours and 23 minutes on one filling of gasoline. They flew 5,359 miles over a closed circuit.

E. M. Huston, 93, and his wife, 91, celebrated the 76th anniversary of their marriage at Strong City, Kan., recently.

Another man stepped in the line of fire and was shot through the head and seriously wounded before the machine gunners escaped.

SCORE INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—With almost a score of persons injured, one seriously, police today began an investigation into the mysterious and terrific explosion which last night partially wrecked three apartment houses in West Philadelphia, drove a hundred frightened residents to the streets in scanty attire and shattered windows in nearby homes.

One girl, as yet unidentified, was reported to have suffered a fractured skull when the heavy blast let go. The other injured suffered lacerations and bruises.

CARETAKER OF HOUSE KILLED

CHICAGO, March 3.—Sprayed with a volley of machine gun bullets when he attacked a gang of five men as they were attempting to bomb an alleged gambling house in Blue Island, William Mayer, caretaker of the resort, was shot to death today.

Another man stepped in the line of fire and was shot through the head and seriously wounded before the machine gunners escaped.

OHIO HOTEL DESTROYED

Ten Guests Forced To Flee From Beds in Southern Ohio Village Blaze.

HARRISON, O., Mar. 3.—Ten hotel guests were forced to flee from their beds early today when a fire of unknown origin broke out, razing one building, causing heavy damages to two others and resulting in a total estimated loss of $60,000.

The Central hotel, a three-story brick structure, was damaged to the extent of $25,000. A two-story frame building, used as a dwelling and store, was practically destroyed. Another two-story frame structure was damaged.

The flames for a time threatened to wipe out the entire village, which is located astride the Indiana boundary in the northwest corner of Hamilton-co.

A call was put in to Cleves, near by, for assistance, but the fire department of that village was unable to reach the scene of the conflagration when their truck broke down enroute. Help was finally secured from Cheviot, a suburb of Cincinnati.

COOPER'S INQUIRY MYSTERY-FILLED

MONTEREY, Calif., March 3.—Authorities today expected to clear up the mystery which surrounds the appearance of Edna May Cooper, film actress and aviatrix, in a hospital here suffering from injuries she apparently sustained during her recent disappearance.

Complaining of a loss of memory and nervous shock, the co-holder of the women's endurance flight record asked for medical assistance at the hotel where she had been registered since Wednesday as "Caroline Hope."

Dr. Hugh Dormody found she was suffering from bruises on her head and right thigh and took her to a hospital.

News of Homes and Home Folks

VOL. 3. No. 9.

Tuesday, March 3, 1931.

"TELLS" "First Furnish Your Home—It Tells What You Are."

The meat of our slogan lies in that sixth word "tells." Your home does exactly that. It communicates to those who see it a knowledge of yourself, your good taste and judgment, your pride in your surroundings. Whether or not this tale is a true one depends solely upon you.

Pleasantly arranged rooms in which there is ample provision for comfort and convenience, in which color and design are related harmoniously—these tell our guests a story that we like to have told. They say: "Here is a family that puts home first in its obligations." They tell the visitor: "You are welcome here." They declare to the important business caller: "This man you can rely upon; he will be loyal to you."

You never hear such conversations. Your guests may not even be conscious of them. But the impressions are made as surely as if the words had been uttered. Are your furnishings broadcasting the kind of messages you want other folks to hear? We'll be pleased to suggest new things that will enable you to make your home truly tell what you are.

WHAT will be discussed next Tuesday? Watch this space and see.

We've been "dabbling" in rugs for the past 15 years. Yes, we have sold hundreds of them to the people about Roundtown. But, it's been many a day since we have had such beautiful patterns at as low a price as prevail at this time. If anyone is in need of a rug, now is the time to buy, and here's the place to buy it. If you don't believe it, just drop in and see some of the new 1931 patterns and prices.

'Squire E. C. Friece was holding court the other day when a certain violator of the law was brought in for trial. In order that he might make a good impression on the 'Squire, the violator said, "It's a fine day, 'Squire." In reply, the 'Squire said: "You're right and the amount of yours will be $10."

It is not a bit too late to drop in and order out one of those new $39.50 "sleep-producers" that we are selling at the unheard-of price of $23.50. Of course, we refer to those inner-spring mattresses that are made by a Nationally known mattress manufacturer that we advertised one day last week.

That's a beautiful front you have added to your drug-store in the Masonic Temple, Mr. Gleadell. It helps the looks of the old burg.

You folks that have radios have heard the Quaker Girl, and her crowd, tell about the Quaker felt-base rugs. Every Friday night, over WLW, comes the Quaker program, telling how easy it is to keep the Quaker rug clean and how well it wears. Of course, those folks are paid by the factory to tell you all of that boloney. But, when a local user tells the same story, you can't call that "boloney"—it's the positive truth. Mrs. Chas. Dean, R. 1, Laureville, told us last week that the Quaker felt-base floor covering that she purchased two years ago, and placed in her dining room in her country home and which has had a tremendous traffic on it, has stood the test. She says that it looks as good as new, although she has used nothing on it but a little soap and water. It's very clear why it has stood up so well—it's covered with ACCOLAC when made. So are the Quaker rugs.

Well, well, that second tank of Pyrofax Gas in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White, New Holland, is still functioning. It was on April 23, 1930, that we installed this gas outfit in their home and they have been using gas for cooking and baking ever since. Up to Feb. 23rd, it has been in use 10 months and has operated at an average cost per month of only $2.80, and it is still going. Wonder if it will run two more months and make it a full year for $28.00? And is Mrs. White delighted with her gas range? Just ask her. Any one, any where, may now have the pleasure of using gas for cooking and baking, and at a very low cost of installation and operation. Why not drop in and let us explain the new low prices?

Just recently, Mr. S. T. Rife was teaching the history class at Circleville Jr. High and he asked Tom— "Tom, where was the Declaration of Independence signed?" Tom replied, "At the bottom, I guess."

Some few weeks ago, we tried to warn the housewives about some birds that were traveling around selling floor-coverings. One Circleville lady didn't heed our warning and purchased of them. She asked for enough to make a 9x12 size (12 sq. yds.) and they sold her 10 sq. yards, and charged her 33c more than she could have purchased Armstrong's Quaker Felt-Base from us. They told her that she was buying "Armstrong's" but we couldn't find the pattern in their pattern-book. Wouldn't it have been better for her to have patronized a home-merchant?

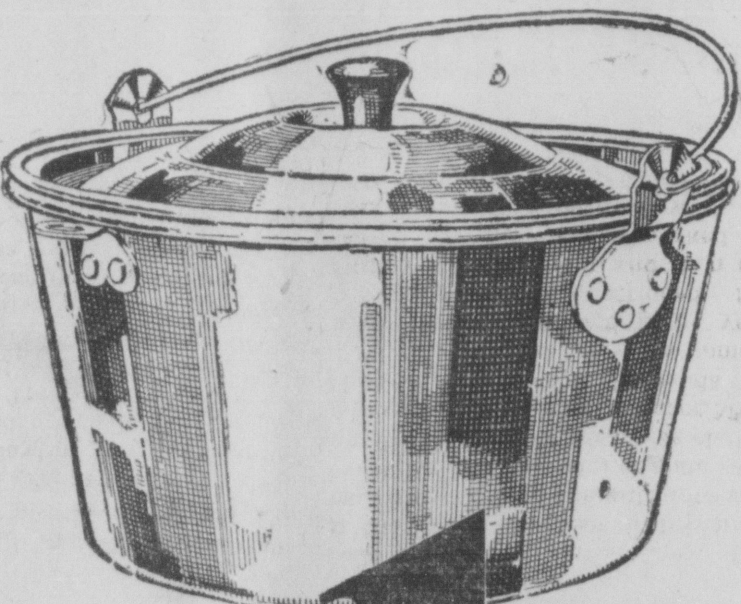

It wouldn't do to publish an issue of RTT without saying a word about the Estate Gas Range. Today, we'd just like to say that Mrs. J. M. Kirwin reported that she baked an excellent cake in her new Model K. We knew she would do it, for the Estate gives perfect baking results every time. You can do the same as Mrs. Kirwin, if you'll let us install one of these fine ranges in your kitchen.
